1 Network Conference

New forms of learning in social work organisations: Learning and ideas from the Key Situation Model

How can we design practices and environments in organisations that support interest-led collaborative learning?

With exclusive contributions from

Etienne Wenger, USA, the founder of the Communities of Practice approach and

Adi Staempfli, UK, the co-author of the Key Situations Model

This conference is for practitioners, academics and others

- who want to develop as a professional and as a whole person
- who also see their workplace as a living space
- who believe that it is possible to co-develop a generative culture with inspiring forms of learning
- who want to give their best and get the best back from others

The network conference of the Association Key Situations in Social Work focuses this year on forms of learning in social work organisations. We are being inspired by Etienne Wenger, the pioneer of the Community of Practice approach. He receives worldwide recognition for his innovative ideas and will speak about:

Etienne Wenger

"Becoming a learning organization and profession: The potential of the CoP approach."

The second input is concerned with concrete forms of design based on the "Activity Centred Analysis and Design" framework. As the name suggests, the focus is on the central importance of learner activities. Design options are developed for the implementation of the key situations model in organisations.

Adi Staempfli

"Design options for the implementation of the Key Situations in Social Work model"

The second day will provide an opportunity to meet representatives from social work organisations who implement the Key Situations in Social Work model in their everyday practice. We are looking forward to gaining insights into how they do this in:

- Integration Center Baselland (Eingliederungsstätte Baselland)
- sebit Aargau
- SRH University Heidelberg
- FHNW School of Social Work, University of Applied Sciences and Art Northwestern Switzerland

Our approach

We will this year again work with a hybrid conference format. This combines the classic lecture with enough space for individual as well as collective reflection and the well-received Open Space method to work on specific questions or topics.

Conference Programme

On the first day, the expert presentations will highlight forms of learning in organisations from different perspectives and actively involve the participants in the conference. On the second day, experts from practice organisations and universities who work with the key situations approach will take up these perspectives and talk about how working with key situations can promote new forms of learning in organisations. The specific issues that arise for conference participants will be addressed in interest-led CoPs (communities of practice).

Finally, we take care of not only the intellectual, emotional and social well-being, but also the physical well-being! Lunch on Monday and Tuesday as well as coffee and cake are included in abundance in the conference fee. On Monday evening we will also offer a networking evening, which will be free of charge for Association members. The detailed program follows on the next page.

Who is this conference for?

The conference is for all members of the Association and the Network as well as colleagues from practice and the academy who are curious to see how active, lively learning can be enabled through communities of practice in the Key Situations model. In addition, interested students and practitioners who want to implement the Key Situations in social work model in their organisations are warmly invited.

Etienne Wenger is an internationally renowned speaker. This conference is an unique opportunity to get to know him and his ideas based on a social theory of learning. Therefore, we open the doors for colleagues from other disciplines and look forward to a lively and fruitful exchange across disciplinary borders!
